THE
POST

● The other night it fell to my lot to attend a party. It was not a party for me, nor for any adult, but a gathering place of boys and girls who are standing at the border line between grammar school and high school, with a few who had already crossed that important border. It was an experience I had not had in a long, long time, and one that left some unforgettable memories.

● As one gazes at half a hundred boys and girls, all dressed up for a social gathering, the one thought that will always come is that here is found the real wealth of any community and any nation. No other possession that we may have or hope to have can ever begin to equal this possession, for in this one possession are "the hopes and fears of all the years." To these boys and girls we leave our own records, our own hopes, our own fears and our own worldly possessions in whatever degree we may have them. And they, we know, must carry on in future years the things we have tried to do.

● Yet with this precious possession we are so terribly careless and negligent so many times. Saturday night I watched these boys of fourteen and fifteen as they danced, as they scuffled, as they tramped back and forth in the timeless fashion of such boys, and I thought a lot of the year 1914. In that year there were many boys of that age attending their first dances and who looked at life as something that would stretch out into an endless future. That summer a random pistol shot set fire to something that engulfed the world, and many of those boys of fourteen and fifteen, died in a country which few of them knew anything about in February, 1914.

● Now, a quarter of a century later, we see a world rearing, with old hates and old animosities heated to flame that may again sweep the world. Those boys I watched the other night may have the same shadow over them that the lads of 1914 had. The earlier boys knew nothing of such a shadow, and the boys the other night knew nothing of it. Pray God the leaders in Europe and the leaders of this nation may be able to avert such a catastrophe this time.

● The little girls, bless them, look more grown up than do the boys. Put a little dress on any little girl of fourteen or fifteen or even younger, twist her hair around a bit, and after the manner of Mother Eve, that little girl becomes a grown woman, and begins to cut her eyes around and adopt a grown up manner. And how unbelievably sweet and lovely and appealing they can be! Eyes that sparkle with youth, lips that have such a youthful smile, a head that tosses so flirtatiously — ah, how these little girls can become women just by putting on a party dress.

● And how the boys do work to make a show! Fighting against their native unbelief in being polite, they bow and scrape and wait on the girls for a certain length of time, and then for a while they revert to being pure boys again and push and haul and scramble around until they suddenly remember their manners and begin to be men again.

● But boys and girls too are sweet and appealing at these ages, just as they stand at the borderline. Another year or so, and they will think they are indeed grown. Now all of them still have an instinctive tie that binds them to the home, but that tie is wearing thin, and the day is not far off when they will snap it and be gone.

● I said at the beginning, but it must be repeated. These boys and girls are our greatest wealth. Besides them mere money and earthly things fade into nothing.

What a shirt! O. K. Laundry.

Plane Data
Appeases
Many CriticsAustin Decides That Deal
With France Not Dangerous

Washington. —The Administration's explanation of its aid to French plane purchases in this country swung some Senatorial critics to the view today that its course was entirely proper.

From the Republican camp, Senator Austin of Vermont said the Senate Military Committee's investigation had convinced him that the Administration's action in connection with the French purchases was "not unneutral, not provocative to any other nation, not an impediment to our own procurement program and not in violation of the Army's priority rights to the latest developments in planes."

Austin told newspaper men he felt the whole transaction "tended to promote our capacity to produce airplanes needed under the armaments program."

This was the argument presented by Secretary Morgenthau and other Administration leaders in testimony which the committee made public yesterday. The French bought 515 planes.

Meantime, it became apparent that reports from Key West, Fla., that President Roosevelt may cut short his Southern vacation because of threatening European developments had made the legislators more hesitant to discuss foreign affairs.

While some said they knew of no trans-Atlantic news as had as the President hinted, there was no discounting the fact that the Chief Executive has channels of information not possessed by Legislators.

Circulars In Capital Boom
Dalton For Kentucky Governor

Washington. — Kentuckians in Washington have received in the mail this week printed circulars boosting Roscoe R. Dalton of Monticello for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the Kentucky primary next August.

The four-page circulars, prefaced by a picture of Dalton, were unsigned and purportedly were prepared "by a friend and admirer, without the knowledge, consent or advice of Judge Dalton, in an effort to start a movement for a man who could win easily either in a primary or in the final election" and who "is a gifted lawyer with a proven capacity for public administration and a gentleman measuring up to the highest traditions of a proud state."

Dalton's name has been mentioned frequently in Kentucky congressional circles as a possible "compromise" candidate to oppose Lieut. Gov. Keen Johnson, Governor Chandler's announced choice for the governorship.

Neither Senators Logan nor Barkley, who have remained publicly silent on the forthcoming primary, would comment on the Dalton boom, although Logan said he had "heard some time ago that he was a candidate."

A prominent Kentucky publisher has been mentioned in congressional circles as a possible running-mate for Dalton, if Dalton makes the race.

Crack Tilghman
Basketball Team
Coming Tuesday

The Bulldogs will meet the high flying Tilghman Tornado of Paducah on Tuesday night in their last home game of the season. The Tornado won the Western Kentucky Conference basketball tournament under wraps on Saturday from the highly rated Madisonville Maroons by the lopsided score of 38 to 20. In the afternoon game Murray fell victim to the victory surge of the mighty blue team of the Western Kentucky Metropolis by the margin of 22 points. As the result of these victories, together with their brilliant playing during the last few minutes, the Tornado has won the distinction of being the top ranking team of Western Kentucky. It is doubtful if any team in the State could withstand the withering offensive play of the Tornado as it functioned to smother the Maroons. That, however, does not mean that they are assured of a berth in the first regional tournament to be played in the Carr Health Building on March the 11th and 12th. To win this coveted honor it will be necessary for them to defeat Heath and Barlow or Wickliffe. Since this meet will be held on the Barlow court, which is much smaller than the Tornado is accustomed to playing upon, the other teams will have a distinct advantage.

The Bulldogs have had a week of enforced idleness since they played Murray on the 14th. The locals are playing much better ball than they played in the earlier part of the season. They out-scored the Tigers in every quarter of the game except the first, during which they trailed by a score of 17 to 3. In spite of this, not even the most optimistic fan gives them much of a chance against Coach Dinning's talented team. The Bulldogs are determined to play their best game of the season against what will no doubt be the best team they have played this season. If you see this game you will see the most potential contender for state basketball honors in Kentucky at the present time. If you enjoy a fast scrappy game, do not fail to see this one! Murray and Hurley, members of the highly rated Murray College Thoroughbreds, will officiate. The "B" teams will play at 7 o'clock, the varsities at 8 o'clock.

Musty Documents May Shed
New Light On U. S. Freebooter

Washington.—Two cases of musty documents which arrived in Washington recently may shed new light on one of the most lurid tales in the history of the Americas, a story replete with adventure and freebooting.

The papers are understood to tell more of the story of the Tennessee, William Walker, who made himself President of Nicaragua, sought to unite all Central America under him, transported small armies of Americans there, fought Commodore Vanderbilt for control of the gold rush route across the Isthmus of Panama, commanded in battles, clashed with the United States and British navies, and eventually was executed.

The documents come from the American Legation at San Jose, Costa Rica, in which country Walker was defeated at the Battle of Rivas in 1857. A monument at San Jose Ricans call their victorious war against the United States, and they observe the anniversary of the battle as a National holiday.

Ordered Sent Home
The archives are part of an estimated 250 tons of documents which the State Department has ordered sent home from embassies, legations and consulates abroad. On arrival here they go directly to the Archives Building for anopysis and cataloging.

From what is known of William Walker, he stands out as one of the world's most daring political adventures. In the 1850's he took several hundred Americans to Nicaragua and had himself elected president of the country.

He engaged in the business of transporting, across the Isthmus at Nicaragua, Americans going from Eastern United States to California in the gold rush. When they arrived by ship at Nicaragua he had them carried up the San Juan River by boat to Lake Nicaragua and across the lake, then down to the Pacific Ocean by stage-coach. He became a savage competitor of Commodore Vanderbilt, who had constructed a railroad across Panama.

Plan Shattered
His plan to make himself the ruler of all Central America was shattered when he faced a combination of Guatemalan, Costa Rican and Nicaraguan forces and his little army was defeated at the Battle of Rivas.

Rescued by an American naval officer, he returned to the United States, organized another expeditionary force and let it back to Nicaragua. But the expedition was broken up by an American naval officer, Capt. Hiram Paulding. Rumors that Walker had backing from high places in the United States Government seemed confirmed when President Buchanan reprimanded Captain Paulding and removed him from his command.

Back in the United States again, Walker organized a third expedition and led it to Central America. Off the shores of Honduras a British fleet broke up his forces and took him prisoner. A British naval captain named Salmon handed him over to the Hondurans and they speedily executed him by firing squad in 1860.

Thos. H. Irby, 70,
Dies At Home Here

After having spent a useful, fruitful life among his circle of friends and business associates, Thomas Henry Irby passed away at his home on Second Street yesterday morning at 3:40.

Mr. Irby was born at Whiteville, Tenn., in 1868, being permitted to live the allotted time of man. He was married to Miss Valra Stuart, September 27, 1894, also of Whiteville. He is survived by his wife, two sons, Floyd of Shawnee, Oklahoma, and Rochelle of Los Angeles, California, one sister, Mrs. N. J. Seddens, Whiteville, two grandchildren, Thomas Irby of Shawnee, and Mary Wilkes Irby of Los Angeles, a niece, Mrs. Robert Freedland, Whiteville, and a nephew Leo Seddens, St. Louis.

Mr. Irby professed faith in Christ and united with the Baptist church in early life, and has been a devout, faithful member of the First Baptist Church of this city during the thirty-five years he has resided here. For a number of years he was one of the leading druggists of the city, in fact until his health compelled him to retire; and through his medium he was enabled to minister to countless numbers throughout this section, and his sympathetic nature made of him his friends. One of his outstanding characteristics was that helping others.

Something like a year ago it seemed the end was near, but due to the very best medical skill and his determination to fight a winning battle he was spared until yesterday morning, and when Mr. Irby went away yesterday morning Fulton lost one of her best citizens, a man who adopted Christian living as the foundation of his life.

Funeral services were conducted this morning at ten o'clock at the Baptist Church, by the pastor, Rev. Woodrow Fuller, ably assisted by the pastor of the First Methodist church, Rev. J. N. Wilford, after which the body was carried cross-country to Whiteville, Tenn., and interment in Melrose Cemetery, where his father and mother are buried.

Mr. and Mrs. James Davania, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Davania, have returned to their home in Mayfield.

Woe Is Girl Athletes' Coach:
Star, 14, Elopes, Team Loses

Dyersburg. —Dan Cupid played a foul trick last night on Coach Fred Pinckley of the Richwood basketball team.

Coach Pinckley's star forward Virginia Wheeler, 14, had been largely responsible for bringing the team into the finals of the Dyer County Elementary School Basketball Tournament here last night. In fact, she was just about the whole team.

But when time came for the final contest, Virginia was missing. Then came a messenger to tell the coach that his star forward had just eloped with Thelmer Tidwell, 21, also of Richwood, and would not play. Making the best of a bad situation, the Coach sent in a sub, who scored only two points, and his team dropped out of the tournament. Mrs. Tidwell

U. S. To Sue
Tire Makers
For A MillionTrust Law Violations To Be Charged Against
Manufacturers

Washington. —The Justice Department today announced it would file a civil suit for $1,053,474 tomorrow against eighteen automobile tire manufacturers and dealers.

Thurman Arnold, head of the anti-trust division, said the suit would be filed in the Federal District Court for the Southern District of New York and would seek treble an amount alleged to have been lost by the Government as a result of collusive bidding by the defendants on Government fire contracts.

First Such Case for U. S.
A section of the Sherman anti-trust act provides that any person injured in his business or property by reason of another's violation of the act may sue and recover treble damages.

Justice Department officials said tomorrow's suit would be the first time, however, the Government ever had brought action under this section. In this connection, Arnold pointed out that the maximum fine recoverable by criminal action was $5,000.

The Treasury Department which makes purchases for the Government, rejected two years ago bids on supplying the Government with tires for the period from October 1, 1937, to March 31, 1938.

Identical Bids Filed
At that time it advised the Justice Department that identical bids had been submitted on its proposed purchases of tires from the period beginning October 1, 1936.

An advice from the Justice Department, the Treasury then declared a public exigency existed which made inoperative the statute requiring that the Government make its purchases by receiving bids. Immediate subsequent tire purchases were made in the open market without negotiated contract.

Protected Deposits In A Bank Failure

The closing of the second largest bank in Jersey City, N. J., this week represents by far the largest single bank failure covered by the Federal deposit guaranty. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation reports that it will make good some $18,000,000 of the bank's $22,560,000 unsecured deposits, and will reimburse in full all but 400 of the 39,000 depositors. In the whole year 1938, deposit insurance losses and expenses amounted to only $8,700,000.

The net loss to the F. D. I. C. from the Jersey City failure will be considerably less than $18,000,000, because the F. D. I. C. will receive something from the assets of the closed bank. Those assets are understood to be largely liens on real estate in Jersey City. In the discussion of Mayor Hague's administration of that city, the anti-Hague camp often made the charge that assessments and tax rates in the city were unduly high.

In 1938 the income of the F. D. I. C. available to meet claims amounted to almost $48,000,000—over $38,000,000 from the regular assessment on insured banks and over $9,000,000 from interest earned. In each year to date the F. D. I. C.'s income has exceeded its losses, so that it now has a net surplus of over $131,000,000. In addition, the F. D. I. C. at its inception was given $150,000,000 from the Treasury and $139,000,000 from the surplus of the Federal reserve in exchange for F. D. I. C. capital stock.

Every member bank of the Federal reserve system, national or State, must come under the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. State non-member banks may also become members, but acceptance of their applications is optional with F. D. I. C.

Approximately 15,200 banks are now operating in the United States as compared with more than 25,000 in 1929. Of the present number, $3,700 were insured with F. D. I. C. at the beginning of 1938. Most of the 1,500 uninsured banks are small affairs, except for certain mutual savings banks in the East.

When Federal deposit insurance began in 1934, under the act of June 16, 1933, the limit of guaranty was $2,500 for each account. On July 1, 1934, the maximum was raised to $5,000. For some time Congress has been considering raising the guaranty for each account to $10,000 or even to $25,000.

Under the present $5,000 limit, about 98 1-2 per cent of all the 61,500,000 accounts in insured banks are fully protected, but of the total deposits of over $48,000,000,000 (September, 1938), only 45 per cent on the average. Only 22 per cent of all deposits are covered in New York and only 38 per cent in Illinois, but over 60 per cent in twenty-four States.

F. D. I. C. altogether has been involved in the closing or merging of 253 banks. The number of depositors affected was 479,829, of whom only 748 were not fully protected.

Federal deposit guaranty began on a temporary basis. If the guaranty fund showed a surplus, it was to be returned to the participating banks; if a deficit occurred, additional assessments might be made. The present scheme went on a permanent basis in August, 1935. It makes no provision for any return of surplus or for any increase of assessment, but the annual assessment on each insured bank is fixed at one-twelfth of 1 per cent of its average regular deposits. — Editorial Research Reports.

Townsend's Scorn Hurdled At Plan Foes

Washington — Dr. F. E. Townsend told members of the House Ways and Means Committee today they don't know what they were talking about if they considered a $200 a month ceiling for old age pensions "absurdly high."

The tall, gaunt physician, sponsor of the pension program which bears his name, shook a long finger at the committee.

"No family can live on $100 a month and rear and educate its children properly," he said. "If we can't establish a standard of living higher than $40, certainly we can't maintain our type of government much longer."

Townsend, whose last appearance before a congressional committee led to an unserved jail sentence, was testifying at hearings on amendments to the Social Security Act and on proposed substitute pension programs.

To the committee which drafted the original Social Security Act, Townsend described that law as "the height of absurdity of any bill ever passed by Congress."

He asserted that $200 a month was only enough to provide a decent standard of living now.

"I believe that every five years, once we take the shackles off technical knowledge and genius," the doctor asserted, "we shall have to resurvey and raise the standard. The $200 a month won't stay there long. We'll go to $300."

"And as we establish this standard of living, labor will demand and get it."

The Townsend plan contemplates paying monthly benefits up to $200 from proceeds of a 2 per cent transactions tax.

Tennessee Appropriations Up By $70,000.00

Nashville, Tenn. — The Senate boosted the Administration appropriations bill by about $70,000 today and agreed with the House to adjourn sine die March 7.

A joint resolution proposed by the Speakers of both Houses, with the approval of Gov. Prentice Cooper, extended the session to a maximum of sixty-five days. This represented a session ten days longer than the Governor had demanded originally.

Fund for Aged Increased

As it emerged from the Upper House, the appropriations measure called for expenditures totaling about $20,200,000 for the next fiscal year. The Senate chopped off approximately $90,000 of appropriations added to the original bill in the House, but added $138,000 of its own.

The major increase proposed by the upper branch was a $97,500 additional to care for the State's aged, making the total appropriation $1,925,000. This represented a $247,500 increase in the contribution originally contemplated by Cooper.

Deficit Put At Four Billion

Washington — The Treasury today said it has spent more in the first seven and a half months of the fiscal year than it expects to take in during the whole year, which will end June 30.

Federal spending from July 1st to February 15th, totaled $5,616,780,615, or about $90,000,000 more than estimated receipts for the year.

Receipts amounted to only $3,542,601,869, causing a deficit of $2,074,158,146. If expenditures reach $9,492,000,000 by June 30, as expected, the deficit then will be $4,000,000,000.

In the comparable seven and a half months of last fiscal year, expenditures were $4,594,583,270, $847,762,468 above receipts.

The Federal debt on February 15 was at a new high of $39,798,893,142.
